In Re: CG Docket No. 03-123 – Annual Consumer Complaints Log Summary
Concerning Telecommunications Relay Service (TRS) – State of Georgia

Dear Ms. Dortch and Ms. Gregory:

I am responding on behalf of the Georgia Public Service Commission (GPSC) to the requirement contained in the Improved TRS Order; 47 C.F.R. § 64.604 (c)(1) (Mandatory Minimum Standards) for the annual submission of states' telecommunications relay service (TRS) consumer complaint log summaries for the 12 month period ending May 31, 2006 on or before July 1, 2006.

The GPSC has received four complaints concerning the Georgia TRS during the period June 2005 – May 2006.

1. On July 20, 2005 the GPSC received a complaint via email from an individual, who identified himself as a metro Atlanta BellSouth Telecommunications residential subscriber who was unable to access the Georgia TRS by dialing 711.

This email complaint was acknowledged the same day and forwarded to BellSouth for investigation. BellSouth responded on July 29, 2005 that an investigation by the Company Switched Service Department revealed that a translation routing error existed in the Alpharetta (Georgia) switch which was subsequently corrected. BellSouth contacted the complainant and advised him that the 711 access problem he had experienced had been corrected. The complainant then made a successful 711 call according to the Company.

2. On August 28, 2005, a subscriber called the GPSC to complain that they could not access the Georgia TRS either by dialing 711 or the ten digit number for voice/hearing subscribers. Complainant also stated that they were a customer of BellSouth Telecommunications. The complaint was forwarded to BellSouth for investigation the same day. BellSouth responded on August 29, 2005 that the complainant was not a BellSouth customer but that the Company had contacted her and determined that she was attempting to dial an incorrect ten digit number to access the Georgia TRS, and provided the correct number to her. The BellSouth representative left a callback name and number for any additional questions. The GPSC attempted to contact the complainant to determine the name of her local exchange company and to see if she was still having any difficulty reaching the Georgia TRS by 711 or the appropriate ten digit number. Contact was not established and the GPSC staff member left a voicemail message for the complainant requesting a callback.
3. On October 5, 2005, GPSC received an online complaint to its Consumer Affairs Unit from a subscriber who provided partial identification stating that the "...augusta georgia relay center has bad service due to not having enough relay operators." and some additional comments. On October 24, 2005 the GPSC relay contract administrator responded to the complainant requesting specific information on any, or each, incident of poor service at the Georgia TRS so that appropriate action could be taken. No additional information was received from the complainant.
4. On April 28, 2006, GPSC received a call from a subscriber who complained that, since a new Georgia TRS service provider (Hamilton Relay) had taken over, the typing skills of Communications Assistants (CA's) had diminished and CA's forget to tell him to "Go Ahead" when it is his time to talk. He appeared to have been satisfied with the proficiency of the CA's of the previous relay service provider (AT&T) but was disappointed in the proficiency of many of the new service provider's CAs, excluding the one who was processing his call to the GPSC at that time. GPSC staff apologized for the instances of poor service he had experienced and stated that his comments would be passed along to the new relay service provider. Complainant was also requested to call the GPSC again if he had additional comments concerning the Georgia TRS. GPSC contacted Hamilton Relay on May 1, 2006 and shared the complaint. Hamilton stated that the issues in the complaint would receive attention and requested permission to contact the complainant, which was granted.

AT&T provided the Georgia TRS from April 1, 1991 until March 31, 2006 at which time Hamilton Relay became the service provider of the Georgia TRS. AT&T and Hamilton Relay will be submitting their respective summaries of consumer complaints concerning the Georgia TRS directly to the FCC for the respective time periods during the complaint reporting period during which they have each provided Georgia TRS. GPSC staff reviews these complaints on a monthly basis as reported by AT&T and Hamilton, including the resolution of each. Copies of AT&T's Georgia Relay Service Annual Consumer Complaint Summary June 2005 – March 2006 and Hamilton Relay's Georgia Complaints Report for April – May 2006 received by the GPSC are attached.

Sincerely,
